What's new:

Dreampongers! Wednesday, December 30, 2016 DESKTOP CUDA On a recent trip to the museum in New York City, I came across a painting exhibit entitled "God's Machine - The Coffee Table of New York". As expected, most of the pieces on display in the museum were portraits, drawings, sculptures - etc., but there was one painting that caught my attention. It showed a large cup of coffee, and the painting subtly implied that to get to the coffee cup, you had to traverse a winding dark road or stair case. That coupled with the rather large sizes of the cup and the road led me to think that the coffee cup was a chimera. As a by product of my acumen, my assumption turned out to be correct, as the coffee cup had a sinister role to play: a large inverted cylinder somehow suspended vertically on the chimera. I have come across three other coffee cups over the last couple of weeks, all of which have the same "suspended chimera" structure. I have marked them as under DeskTop CUDA, and below is a quick look at the three. I would love to hear from anyone else who has seen these coffee cups out and about.

SHADOWCOURSE - DESKTOP CUDA A couple of days ago, I was sitting in my study watching TV when I noticed the shadow of a shadow course extend past the television set toward the coffee cup. It appeared to be directly behind the furniture.

EVENTHISTORICA -?????? On July 2, I was talking to a friend in South Korea in the vicinity of a small watercoloured bust of Gaius Cesare (the counterpart in Japan as Gatanasuchus). We spoke about a book that the Gaius Cesare sculpture was in, and I mentioned seeing more illustrations of Gaius Cesare in the book. My friend had "a Parisian" then in Paris (i.e., the proprietor of the La Maison Deschamps book shop) and she was aware of the Gaius Cesare sculpture. A couple of days later, she suggested that I take a look at her Facebook page, where a rather long (possibly two hundred page) illustrated book on art symbols and "things between things" was being shared. Page 76 carried a section on "The Parisian", and there was Origins of Anticancer T Cell Immunosuppressive Network. Metastatic cancer is a major health problem and unmet therapeutic challenge. Tumor-specific T cell-mediated effector function can be subverted by immunosuppressive cells, namely regulatory T cells (Treg), myeloid-derived suppressor cells (MDSC), and M2-macrophages. Although the molecular pathways underlying the tumor-induced tolerance have been extensively characterized, the cellular and molecular origins of the anti-cancer T cell immunosuppressive network remain largely elusive. Based on recent advances in T cell phenotyping and functional biology in the tumor microenvironment, here we proposed a hypothetical model for the development of the anti-cancer T cell-immunosuppressive network, based on the observation of various cancer types including melanoma.

Q: How to pass through html form submit and redirect from one page to another? I have form which consists user ID,password and a submit button. On submit it goes to signup.php and if user is successful it should redirrect from there to a page where user can log in and upload his new photo. I dont know how to pass user ID to signup.php then redirect to login.php
